Chemical Reactions

Signs a chemical change has occurred:

- A new smell
- A formation of bubbles
- A formation of a solid
- A change in temperature
- A change in color

- Can only be measured by changing the chemical make-up of the substance.
- If you observe two or more of these signs during a change, you most likely are observing a chemical change.